1. Claims 1-24 are presented for examination.
2. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1, 5, 9, 13, 17, and 21, drawn to a method and apparatus for reducing branch delay in fetch and decode stage of the next instruction to a not taken mis-predicted branch, classified in class 712, subclass 239.
 - II. Claims 2, 6, 10, 14, 18, and 22, drawn to a method and apparatus for providing opcode of the next instruction to a mis-predicted not-taken branch from a second memory and operand from a first memory, classified in class 712, subclass 238.
 - III. Claims 3, 7, 11, 15, 19 and 23, drawn to a method and apparatus for using a dedicated second decoder to decode the next instruction to a mis-predicted not taken branch, classified in class 712, subclass 212.
 - IV. Claims 4, 8, 12, 16, 20, and 24, drawn to a method and apparatus for converting a conditional branch instruction to a limited conditional branch instruction, classified in class 712, subclass 226.
3. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:
Inventions of Group I and Groups II, III, and IV are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the invention of group I can be used without the second memory, the second decoder, or the conversion. The subcombination has separate utility such as use in a system without the reduction of latency delay in the fetch and decode stages for the next instruction.

Art Unit: 2111

Inventions of Group II and Groups III and IV are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the invention of group II can be used without the second decoder or the conversion. The subcombination has separate utility such as use in a system without the second memory.

Inventions of Group III and Group IV are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the invention of group III can be used without the conversion. The subcombination has separate utility such as use in a system without the second decoder.

4. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required one group is not required for the other groups, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

5. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
